Letter from the Editor

Dear Readers,

We're excited for our 3rd Social Media Summit on October 12 from 11am - 4pm (including Lunch). New this year is a free Networking After Party open to the public between 5 - 7pm with a cash bar!

Since 2009, New Bern Now's driving force remains the same...to promote local businesses, non-profits, events, and more. We want to help you attract clients, customers, and/or donors.

Although it's called a Social Media Summit, we also include Traditional Media outlets like the newspaper, television news, and radio as we believe they play a vital role in our community. With that said, there's two phases of the Summit. We will introduce you to representatives from traditional media so they can explain how they can help you promote your message and then you will hear from local social media experts to help you optimize your online presence. We will also talk about other marketing resources, brand identity, intellectual property and copyright laws, and more!

The Summit is for local businesses and non-profits alike. Who knows, this may ultimately enhance economic growth throughout Eastern North Carolina! There are numerous social media outlets including Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, Linked In, Google+, Pinterest, Youtube, and many more that you may be missing out on.

We believe every business and non-profit should have an online presence. If you don't, people won't find you and you're really missing out! If you do, but you're not seeing any return on your investment, there are all kinds of ways that you can promote your services and products for free. This is why we're holding the Summit. By teaming up with local thought leaders, we believe that we can help you!

We're excited to have at least 15 speakers share their knowledge and experiences with all of us! We're looking forward to sharing valuable information with you to "Navigate Our Future Together".

Visit NewBernNow.com and click on the logo in the right margin and you'll be directed to the page where you can learn more and register. The Raindate is Oct 13. Cost is $20 for the day including lunch.

Please let me know if you have any questions or give me a call at 252-638-6858 or send an email to info@newbernnow.com. We're looking forward to helping promote your efforts!

I hope that you enjoy this quarter's Ledger. Please know that it's an extension of NewBernNow.com which is updated on a daily basis.

Sincerely,

New Bern Civil War Battlefield Park

Written by: Susan Moffat-Thomas

In the Located five miles outside the city at the entrance to a residential development, the New Bern Civil Battlefield Park is a reality due to the New Bern Historical Society's dedication and tireless work over the past 25 years. This preservation restoration project, a crowning jewel of New Bern's acclaimed revitalization effort, is now a major attraction in Craven County and the catalyst for expanding Civil War tourism in Eastern North Carolina.

Prior to the New Bern Historical Society's acquisition of the New Bern Battlefield tract, it was an overgrown, long forgotten 24 acre site of a fierce battle between Union and Confederate forces that took place on March 14, 1862 and ended in a major victory for the Federal Army and New Bern's occupation for the duration of the Civil War.

In the early 1980's, the New Bern Historical Society joined forces with local government officials and community leaders to reverse the decline of the dying downtown and its abandoned waterfront. This highly coordinated effort focused on the restoration and preservation of the town's historic assets and heritage to expand a tourist based industry. As an important stakeholder, the New Bern Historical Society focused on New Bern's Civil War history and the preservation and restoration of its Civil War Battlefield.

Although much of the original battlefield was privately owned and developed, the Battle of New Bern breastworks, the original earthen redans occupied by the 26th and 33rd North Carolina Regiment were in pristine condition within the heavily overgrown wooded 24 tract owned by the Weyerhaeuser Real Estate Company. In mid-summer 1993, three Society members armed with resolutions of support to preserve the site attended the Civil War Advisory Commission's public hearing in Wilmington, North Carolina. As a result, the New Bern Battlefield was included on the list of 383 endangered Civil War sites in the Commission's report to the Secretary of the Interior, July 30, 1993. In 1996, the Weyerhaeuser Real Estate Company deeded the 24 acre tract to the Civil War Trust which in turn deeded the tract to the New Bern Historical Society in January 2000.

Grants provided funds to survey the 24 acre parcel, delineate wetlands, and develop a topographic and archeological survey that was submitted on the application to the National Trust of Historic Places in November 2001. In 2003, to retain the integrity of the 24 acre core battlefield, a foundation contributed funds to purchase an adjacent 2.63 acres from Weyerhaeuser Real Estate Company to gain vehicular access and to serve as an entry gateway and parking area for the Park.

In August 2004, Pat Hart (Landscape Architect, Kimley-Horn and Associates), working with the Civil War Battlefield Committee, completed the New Bern Battlefield Park Master Plan and schematic designs providing the vision, foundation and momentum to acquire funding for restoration of the historic site.

Initial vehicular access to the site was provided by an adjacent developer through an access easement and gravel roadway to the site. Over the course of the year, bringing their own personal construction equipment and chainsaws, hundreds of volunteers began clearing the trails through the densely wooded battlefield. Thousands of hours of volunteer time and labor continued to be contributed by volunteers for construction of trails, bridges, and overlook platforms. Patrons donated funds for construction of a Visitors Center, flagpoles, lighting, and display cannon. A local garden club contributed signage identifying plant life throughout the Battlefield.

In the fall of 2015, a History Walk (designed by Pat Hart) was completed to include 35 interpretive panels placing the battle in its historical context and relating the battlefield to other New Bern and regional Civil War sites. All panels incorporate information to allow visitors to further access in-depth information on a new Society website. A new Gateway Plaza at the trailhead provides seating for interpretive talks and serves to orient visitors with a 20 foot in diameter concrete color-coded ground map and signage providing an overview of the entire battle and a starting point for the guided and self-guided tours.

In celebration of the completion of this phase of work, a public ribbon-cutting celebration, held on October 30th, 2015, was attended by 400+ citizens, local and state dignitaries and elected officials

The preservation, research and educational efforts of these hallowed grounds made possible by $700,000+ in grants, contributions and in-kind services from the public and private sector is on-going. A core group of dedicated volunteer Battlefield guides maintain the site and conduct tours on a daily basis and the Society is working to acquire the remaining privately owned portion in the south east corner of the battlefield.

Once, one of the most endangered Civil War Battlefields in the country, the New Bern Civil War Battlefield Park is now the cornerstone of Civil War tourism in Craven County and Eastern North Carolina.

Adult Enrichment Program

By Susan Moffat-Thomas. Coordinator

To expand learning opportunities to a larger segment of the adult population, Craven Community College reinstated the Adult Enrichment Program in July 2016. Susan Moffat-Thomas, recently retired as the Executive Director of Swiss Bear Downtown Development Corporation, was hired to coordinate the new program which is designed to be self-supporting with non-credit, short-term classes taught at the College's campuses and in community locations.

A sampling of classes that began in September and October include: Basic Hand Quilting, Celebrating Our National Parks = how and why to visit them, Basic Metal Jewelry Making, Book Making for Beginners, Tracing Your Roots with Ancestry.com., A Random Walk Down Wall Street, Head and Portrait Drawing, Selling On ebay, Introduction to Needle Felting, Basic Digital Photography, Myths and Truths About Immigration Law, Family Search and Other Free Online Genealogical Resources, Painting with Acrylics, Cake Decorating, A Social Media Overview, Build a model 18th Century Longboat and survey of Jazz History. Fees for courses vary depending on the length of classes and cost of materials.

The year round course offerings will continue to be developed and expanded based on input from the community and those interested in teaching are encouraged to contact Moffat-Thomas at 252-638-1367.

For a complete listing of courses scheduled and registration, go to CravenCC.edu/AEP, or call 252-638-7248 for more information.
